

Being a Good Steward

As a BLM Junior Explorer, you can play an important role in caring for the natural and cultural resources on public lands. We call people who take care of things "stewards." Do you know what things you should do to be a good steward of America's cultural resources? Look at the pictures below and circle the actions that would protect these resources. Draw an X through the pictures that show actions that would harm these clues to American's past.
